News and News Presentation

This course helps students develop English language skills through the exploration of current events from around the world. Students will read and discuss news articles from Breaking News English, building their reading comprehension, vocabulary, listening, and critical thinking skills. Students will also learn effective news presentation techniques, including summarizing articles, organizing information, and delivering clear, engaging oral presentations.

International Sports

In this course, we will be using sports to help the students get a better understanding of English vocabulary and improve their conversation skills. They will also learn life skills, such as teamwork and communication. It aims to make both teaching and learning the English Language more exciting and motivating for both instructors and learners, ultimately increasing the English Language proficiency level of the learners. It is hoped that this would help increase the confidence of learners to speak English without any inhibitions while at the same time providing them with new knowledge through sports.

Prerequisite: If the students don't follow the class rules and instructions they will be asked to leave and find another elective.

Assessment: The students will have different physical assessments according to the sport learnt, for example, passing the ball, shooting, dribbling, ball control etc.. They will also have to write a written exam for the jargon they have learnt over the course.

Social Issues

Social Issues Through English is an elective where students explore age-appropriate global and local issues—such as technology, the environment, education, and media—while improving their English skills. Through short readings, video clips, discussions, and mini-projects, students build academic vocabulary, critical thinking, and clear opinion expression. Activities include small debates, role-plays, and brief reflective writing.

Requirements:

Be intermediate-level ESL (W1 and above recommended), be able to write short paragraphs in English, understand basic discussion vocabulary and sentence structures, feel comfortable sharing ideas in pairs or small groups.

Broad Edge Letters

Explore the world of broad edge calligraphy in our Broad Edge Letters course! This course will focus on the uncial script – an ancient script used by the Greek and Latin scribes from 4th - 8th century. Students will learn to use a specialized calligraphy pen, the broad pen, and use it to write the uncial script. Join us and transform alphabets into a canvas for creativity and self-expression.

If you do not have the patience to practice writing for an entire class, this class is not for you.

Assessment: class practice, writing projects
