My family planned to travel to China in November. We googled some information on the internet, and it showed us that the weather in China in November is very cold. Therefore, we went to Carrefour to purchase fur hats, scarves and gloves. After that, I was so excited that I couldn't sleep all night.

Before my first time going to China, I thought it was uncivilized. However, when the plane landed, the view before my eyes was very different. The city there was just like those in Taiwan twenty years ago. But they have progressed very fast, both in dietary habits and vital functions.

We went to many places such as the Dujiangyan Irrigation Project which helped me understand more about Ancient Chinese Inventions. Some of China's Ancient Wisdom are things that even technological advancements can't replace. We bought some snacks on argyle street, like sugar-coated figurines, sugar-coated berries and dough figurines. They are very sweet but so yummy.

I was very impressed by the view at Jiuzhaigou Country and Huanglong Scenic area. After we adapted to the weather on High Hill, we went to admire many different places. Shiny snow attracted my attention, the water was so clean, and the waterfall was spectacular. Besides these, the Tibetan customs were so comfortable. The scenery looked just like a wonderful stereogram.

Then, it was time to go back to Sichuan! We ate a meal of Chili Fonduean, and to my great surprise, it was so spicy for me that I drank a lot of water. Bian Lian is an important part of the culture in Sichuan; it's amazing enough to see they change their faces so quickly.

For the last day of our journey, we went to see pandas. Chengdu Research Base of Giant Panda Breeding is the only place to successfully propagate big pandas. Each panda has its own name, but I can't see any difference between them. They all look the same! I don't care what they are called: I just know that they are so cute that I bought a panda doll. Can you believe it? I hug it every night! It is just like my baby.

Time flew like an arrow, and it was time to go home. I have changed my view about China: the scenery was beautiful, and the culture was really impressive. If I have time some day, I would like to go to China AGAIN!
