A CHRISTMAS CAROL

應三乙

朱芳謹

In the story, a man called Ebenezer Scrooge was mean and unconcerned. One night, a spirit of his old friend, Marley appeared in his house. He wanted to let him know how miserable his after-life is, because Marley was a mean guy as well. Therefore, Marley told him that three ghosts would come to visit him at night. They took him to revisit the memory of Christmas Past, Christmas Present, and Christmas Future. It was a terrible and scary night. He experienced the wonder time in the past, but looked the other side of the reality life. After the three influential lessons, Scrooge became a kind person and knew the importance of helping other people.

In the world, many people want to become rich and influential. They change their mind, into stingy and mean. Because of money, they find the short-cut to save money. Saving money is good, but they can't be a stingy guy. Just like the story's protagonist, Scrooge has ever broken up with his girlfriend because of money and reality. In this way, everyone will be far away him, due to his inappropriate behavior and rotten attitude. On the contrary, Scrooge should thank to people who have helped him. For example, Marley reminded Scrooge not being a mean person anymore. Since he was put into the hell as a result of malicious mind. With the help of Marley, Scrooge would not follow the same old disastrous road. If people open their mind, they will discover that the world is full of love. Love can make everybody become closer, just like a family. Even we have no relationship by blood, we also can concern with each other. Last but not least, taking much concern of people who need help and being a more considerate person will bring the world to the road of peace and warmth.
